Police wield tech lathi to beat criminals

MindSight Latest Addition To Crime-Fighting Software

Ahmedabad: It was one of the major robberies in recent times not only for Ahmedabad district but also for Gujarat. Robbers stopped a truck carrying goods of various Ahmedabad-based angadia firms and fled with 27 packages worth Rs 5 crore, at 11.45 pm on June 5.

A THING OF THE PAST?

Pinac and Eklayva pioneers

Ahmedabad city crime branch was the pioneer in developing software specific to its needs. Pinac brought all data on history-sheets to a single platform where police personnel could check for any person's criminal record with a few clicks. Pinac was followed by Eklayva that brought vehicle registration data to a single platform. It was linked to an SMS system to enable access to data on any number by sending a text message. Both softwares were developed by head constable Dilip Thakor who was promoted as sub-inspector rank for his contribution.

While police officials refused to divulge much about the software functions, they said that it combines online and offline data and analyzes cellphone-related data in a unique manner. Rai said that police require data in a format that is different from that maintained by cellular services providers. The software presents data in a format that police can handle easily. Rai said that inputs of personnel ranging from constables to SPs have been integrated on the basis of investigatory needs.

A senior official said that today's offenders are tech-savvy. "Habitual offenders know what

Digitization still a dream

Gujarat Police's ambitious e-Cop project is yet to take off, even three years after its launch by Narendra Modi, the chief minister at the time. The primary objective is to connect all police stations and important offices so that police can use real-time information for identifying criminals and verifying them with bio-markers such as fingerprints. However, sources said that connectivity is a major problem even in cities like Ahmedabad and thus cops are doing double the work—recording a complaint on paper and then on a computer.

Police look for while tracking them or collecting information," the official said. "Thus, the challenge is to keep finding new ways to stay ahead in the race." The official said that with the advent of internet and open databases, experts are privy to very large data sets—both in public and private sphere. "But the challenge is to keep updating data," he said.

Angadia loot: Constable in gang took leave for heist

Aide of Chhota Rajan Man Amr 6 Held With ₹3.5Cr

Ahmedabad: It was the lure of a big haul of currency notes that had prompted the gang of 15 from Gujarat and Maharashtra to target a truck carrying goods from multiple angadia firms near Bavla on Friday night.

Ahmedabad Rural police have apprehended the mastermind as well

Late on Saturday, Ahmedabad rural police arrested Sura Bharwad, considered to be mastermind of the case. After this, police arrested five others and recovered valuables worth Rs 3.5 crore, primarily consisting of gold and silver bars and ornaments. Police will start verifying the stock with the angadia firms soon.

Ahmedabad range IGP K L N Rao told media on Sunday that police arrested Sura Bharwad, 34, a resident of Patan; Kana Bharwad, 31, a resident of Sabarkantha; Khoda Sindhar, 30, a resident of Rajkot; Bhala Bharwad, 32, a resident of Gandhinagar; Sunil Pawar, 48, a resident of Surat; and Ghela Bharwad, 36, a resident of Gandhinagar.

"Ghela Bharwad is a constable with State Reserve Police who had taken four days' leave to take part in the robbery and had worn his uniform on that night to stop the truck," said Rao. "Ghela and Kana are Sura's cousins." Kana knew Sunil, who was working for Chhota Rajan confidant O P Singh in Mumbai, Rao said. "After Singh's murder inside jail in 1989, Pawar settled in Surat in 2002," he said. "He was involved in construction business. He arranged five of the

Tech and team work

Police said that they had got to know about the incident even before the driver called up control room due to GPS tracking system by the angadia firm. Soon, five teams were formed and sent in different directions to get the clue. "It was a total team of over 50 officers and personnel that worked round the clock. The arrests were made quickly from diverse places such as Patan, Sabarkantha, Gandhinagar and Surat, all in 36 hours after the incident," said a police official.

Software edge to detection

Software, at the moment in beta mode, emerged as the hero in the incident. MIND-SITE, developed by a private engineer for Ahmedabad range, which will soon be released, was utilized to solve the robbery case. Rai told media on Sunday that the software combines a lot of elements of technical surveillance combining online and offline details and gets the job done in one eighth of the time which conventional process takes.

Hunt on for other accused

Cops said they have launched the manhunt against other accused in the case even as the stock-taking of the seized valuables is underway. Police have recovered three firearms — two belonging to security guards accompanying the truck and one belonging to the gang. The teams are also trying to trace the location where the gang had dumped a number of cartons that contained clothes and other goods of lesser value.

TECH SUPPORT

SP Nirlipt Rai (Ahmedabad Rural) gave credit to the technology. "Immediately after the incident, we used the software MindSite to locate all suspicious mobile phone activity between Raipur and Bavla.
